*I.G. Farben was a German chemical company.

"It is not without significance for an understanding of the Germans, even the most respectable Germans, under Hitler, that such a distinguished, internationally known firm as I.G. Farben whose directors were honoured as being among the leading businessmen of Germany should deliberately choose this death camp [Auschwitz] as a suitable place for profitable operations".

The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich, William Shirer, 1950.
